

Willow Tree... Song of Joy and Dance of Life

Elegant and emotive art forms, helping put into words what is often difficult to say — this is what customers have come to love about Willow Tree®.

New for 2012 are two striking angels elegantly poised on tall slender stands, one slightly higher than the other. These unique pieces, titled Song of Joy and Dance of Life, add height and drama to your Nativity, or can be displayed alone or together in any room of the house. Artist Susan Lordi describes her inspiration as, 'The clarity and poetic purpose of movement in dance choreography is what inspired the gestures of these two pieces.'

In creating these pieces, Lordi covered the surfaces with intricately carved symbols and icons. 'I like that the painted effect gives the illusion of sheer lace,' she says, 'the wings are more ethereal than other Willow Tree; they're minimal, more free-form, almost disappearing.'

The carvings on Dance of Life, pomegranates and birds, intertwined with vines and berries refer to the richness and renewal of life. On Song of Joy, the carvings are more celestial...sun, moon, stars...alluding to rhythmic cycles and seasons.

These pieces can be enjoyed singly or together, with the Nativity or on their own.

Also new, You and Me represents a couple in love. A couple who has probably spent years together, navigating life's joys and challenges. Susan designed this piece to work with the children in The Roses in my Garden collection, allowing you to create a family grouping that reflects the personality of your own.
