ARTIST
Susan Lordi

Susan Lordi's art reflects our relationships with people and the world around us. Her keen observation of the human form is further inspired by dance, art history, nature, and personal experiences with family and friends. These influences are revealed in her Willow Tree® sculptures, from which emotion is communicated through gestures only.

love YOU

Two small words, said frequently in parting, which mean so much! This figure displays your feelings—on the record—as a visible reminder to the people in your life to whom you can't say it enough. To your children, your spouse, your Valentine, your friends... Just a little reminder!

Introducing the third new introduction into the

Signature Collection

'I like the word Sanctuary. I'm thinking of it as a safe warm space that mother and baby create by being together, quiet, peaceful. The baby feels safe and happy, and the mother is too. They're connected... content to be in a place of inner peace and joy.'

This can be a Guardian Angel piece as well, suggesting that your baby is being watched over, protected, and cradled in a loving embrace. In this way, Sanctuary can be a healing piece.'

OF THOSE WE WANT TO KEEP CLOSE...
