Introduction

Welcome to our latest Beatrix Potter Gifts by Enesco catalogue, where we bring to life the timeless magic of Peter Rabbit and friends through our beloved collections. Within these pages, you will discover an array of exquisite gifts and collectables that capture the charm and beauty of Beatrix Potter's stories.

At Enesco, we are committed to preserving the enchanting world of Beatrix Potter while embracing responsible business practices.

With nature and conservation being key themes in Beatrix Potter's works, it is only fitting that we honour her legacy and the environment which she adored. We are continuing to take significant strides towards using recyclable packaging materials. We have diligently removed single-use plastics wherever possible. Instead, we proudly introduce the use of materials which are easily and widely recycled, opting for paper wraps and cardboard packaging that keep our products both elegant and environmentally conscious.

We invite you to explore our collection, and partner with us in celebrating Beatrix Potter's cherished tales.

Beatrix Potter

Author and Illustrator

Beatrix Potter was an English writer, illustrator, and natural scientist, born on 28th July 1866, in London. She is best known for her children's books featuring beloved animal characters such as Peter Rabbit and Jemima Puddle-Duck. Her charming stories and illustrations have become classics in children's literature.

In addition to her writing, Beatrix was a dedicated conservationist. She used her earnings from her books to purchase and preserve land in England's Lake District, much of which she later donated to the National Trust. Beatrix Potter passed away in 1943, but her stories and conservation efforts continue to be cherished today.
