

WWI Commemorative Pieces from Lilliput Lane

2014 marks 100 years since the outbreak of the First World War and Lilliput Lane is proud to announce the launch of two stunning pieces that have been specially produced to commemorate this important centenary.

Poppy Terrace: as the poppy is the county flower of Norfolk, we have chosen this lovely terrace in Castle Acre for our tribute to the fallen in World War I and have planted poppies right along the front of the terrace.

Lest We Forget: possibly one of most iconic war memorials in the world, The Cenotaph was designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens to commemorate the soldiers who died in World War I. It has since had the dates of World War II included too.

Hand made and hand painted in Britain, if there's one thing that Lilliput Lane does well, it's capturing and celebrating our nation's proud heritage — and these wonderful commemorative pieces will not disappoint!
